Alex Jennings Appreciation

Micaiah Johnson – 4/26/2024

With prose as musical, complex and unignorable as the city he so lovingly depicts, Alex Jennings is a singular talent on the fantasy landscape. I am honored to share the distinction of Compton Crook winner alongside him. The Compton Crook is unique in the world of literary awards, because it is not a pool consisting only of who is best known in the industry, or who got the lion's share of advertising from their publisher, or who editors choose to put forward. (Hey Sam! I wanted to end this sentence with "every debut is given a chance" if you think that applies to the selection process!) When the Compton Crook is given, you can be sure that raw talent and not just reputation is the criteria being rewarded...though it just so happens that Alex Jennings has both in spades. His debut came after he was already a force in the world of editing, short stories, poetry, and arguably most important, being the kind of literary community participant that gives life to the scene. I can't count the number of times I had heard his name from other writers before I ever had the pleasure of meeting him at Balticon. He is truly the kind of talented, prolific writer you'd really want to hate, but his warm and generous spirit makes it impossible.

Alex, I hope you feel every bit of appreciation readers have for you, and I hope the title of Compton Crook winner is just the first of many occasions of the world recognizing a talent that has long been out here.

Statement from Patti Kinlock, BSFAN Editor: The above appreciation of Alex Jennings was accidentally omitted from the BSFAN, the Balticon 58 Souvenir Book. I sincerely apologize to Alex Jennings, Micaiah Johnson, and the members of Balticon 58 for the error.

Berserker Notes

When packing up, put supplies back in their envelopes or any other container with the name of your department, and return them to Ops. This lets us complete inventory and start budgeting for next year. Please tell us about things that need replacement or refilling for next year or anything else you think we'll need next year. (We'll ask again before B59, but writing it down now while you're thinking about it will help.) Many thanks, Maria

Don't forget to turn in your hours! Even if you don't want a reward, the hours help us get grants for future years.

And thank you for your service! Without our volunteers, there would be no Balticon!
